

Restorative Practices 2-Day Professional Development Training Course

At a time when we continue to feel the strain that physical distance has on our sense of community, the science of Restorative Practices offers connection, even where we might not have known it existed. Taught by experienced Restorative Practices facilitators licensed by the International Institute for Restorative Practices (IIRP), this 2-day course will equip you with practical strategies to build strong, healthy relationships with students, families, clients, employees, and colleagues.
